The SL-DSLRLB is a carrying case designed for photographers who only need to carry a few essential accessories along with their camera body. This case is designed to be easily loaded with a body with lens, a second prime or small zoom lens, extra battery, and possibly a camera flash or a small tripod. Along with the included padded shoulder strap, a second back-up strap is already sewn in to the case, in the event that the strap is lost or you need to travel even lighter and smaller.
